

Press Release

A new book is published this week from a first-time author.

Otiz F. Angel has been many things in his life, and now he turns his hand to writing, with the release of his new book, 'Rave Story'. Although written from an autobiographical point of view, the focus of the book is to provide the reader with a look at the birth and coming of age of the Dance music scene in the UK - from the first days of Acid House to the super-clubs and international DJs of today, through the eyes of Angel as he makes his personal journey from the dark days of drug-dealing and gangsterism in his youth to becoming the respected music producer, club owner and social entrepreneur he is today.

Angel shares with us the euphoria and the paranoia, the love and the violence, the wild weekends and grim weekdays dedicated to the earning of a living through the industry of hedonism. Gritty realism is tempered by a sharp, street wit, making for several belly-laughs along the way, too. An honest and compelling read, Rave Story is written from the heart. It will strike a chord with all those who have been inspired by the Rave scene's "do it yourself" ethos and perhaps push some people into taking their first steps towards running their life their own way.

RaveStory is funny, fast-paced and at times totally brutal. It is a tale of our times. Its raw simplicity makes it compelling reading for anyone who has ever partied, gone clubbing or was born in the second half of 20th century Britain.

This is a 'must read', check it out.
